

Brad McPeak

Brad McPeak is the Vice President of Strategic Partnerships for the Applied Information Management (AIM) Institute and, as such, oversees AIM's work with government and non-profit agencies. Brad has been at the AIM institute for four years, since being brought into the organization to manage the Midwest Training and Employment Coalition, a 3 year effort which saw over 4,000 Nebraskans trained in IT literacy and advanced IT skills.

Prior to joining AIM, Brad worked as the director of operations for the Dallas-based technology marketing firm Bertram, McKee and Associates.
